August Highlights

Science360 Comes to ACMi
 Look at this week's TV Schedule and you will see the most recent addition to our Education channel line-up – the National Science Foundation's compelling video series, Science360. Each 60-minute block explores a fascinating subject – astronomy and outer space; technology and engineering; or cutting-edge medicine, to name just a few – from a number of different perspectives. Watching these videos will immerse you in the latest wonders of science, engineering, technology, and math, and leave you better able to not only appreciate but also understand the innovative work being done!

"Sound Off" for Our Veterans
 "Sound Off" is a new program produced by our friends at Natick Pegasus. While the theme of the show is universal, they have also recently added a distinctly Arlingtonian touch. Monthly installments examine issues and events that concern veterans and their families, and often include commentary, pictures, and videos that are not readily accessible to the public. Hosted by former Marine John MacGillivray, and partnered with the Massachusetts National Guard, "Sound Off" invites legislators, veterans, service providers, and others in to discuss both the history and current activities of the Guard, and benefits and services available to veterans and their families. The show's newest addition is none other than Arlington's own Veterans Service Officer, Jeff Chunglo, who shares important news and provides valuable insight from his vantage point as the new President of the Massachusetts Veterans Service Officers Association! Look for "Sound Off" on the Gov channel.

Episode 3 of "The Library Show"
 In this episode of The Library Show, Library Director Andrea Nicolay lets us know what's up this summer. Learn about the library Summer Reading Program for adults, children, and teens. Meet Megan Coffey, the new teens service librarian, and take a walking tour of the teen section of the library! Look for "The Library Show" throughout the week on our Public channel.
