October Highlights

Wide Angle Goes International
 "Wide Angle," ACMi's flagship interview show, has never let geographical distance prevent it from accessing the experts, analysts, and thought leaders with whom host Peter Bermudes engages around compelling, complicated issues of import to Arlington and beyond. This week, the Wide Angle team ventures into new territory, leveraging the power of Skype to reach thousands of miles across the globe to Robi Damelin in Tel Aviv, Israel. Robi is the Israeli spokesperson for the Parents Circle-Families Forum, a group of 600 Israeli and Palestinian families who have lost close family members to regional violence and who now work together for reconciliation and a just resolution to the conflict. Even by the high standards of this exemplary series, this is an episode not to be missed. You can find it airing at 7 pm on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays on the Public channel, and you can also access it on the ACMi website at acmi.tv.

A New Episode of In the Tradition
 A couple of weeks have gone by, so it must be time for a new installment of "In the Tradition!" Our most reliable member-produced program, this old-time music series hosted by Alan Kaufman this week welcomes the award-winning bluegrass banjoist Steve Arkin. Steve started out in the 60s and has achieved such mastery over his instrument in the years since that he is known far and wide and a banjoist "par excellence." In addition to the hot licks you can rely on hearing on "In the Tradition," Steve also shares a number of highly entertaining stories from his fascinating journey over the last number of decades, right up to his recent move to the Boston area from New York state. Look for "In the Tradition" in its usual time slot on our Public channel.

ACMi's Government Coverage Now Extends to State
 Transparency is a vital component for a healthy democracy, and ACMi takes great pride in our comprehensive coverage of the workings of town government, which gives our audience direct access to the deliberations that lead to the decisions that impact our lives. Thanks to Legislative Broadcast Services, we will now be able to extend that coverage to encompass the operations of our state legislature as well. You can be right there as compelling issues like the rollout of marijuana legalization, school choice, and criminal justice reform are being debated – all you need to do is tune in to the Government channel between 7 and 10 am on any Monday, Wednesday, or Friday.
