October Highlights

What's the Story with the Blue Whale?
 For many of us, the sum total of what we know about the Blue Whale is that it is the largest animal on the planet. Thanks to our friends on the North Shore, we are able to present a lecture delivered as part of the festivities celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Windhover Center for the Performing Arts in Rockport, MA. The talk is given by the aptly named Michael Fishbach, a noted whale expert, who takes his audience on a global tour of whale life through slides and video. He also delivers a well-informed, impassioned description of the critical danger in which this magnificent and gentle giant finds itself, thanks largely to human activities. The visuals are often stunning, and the content of Mr. Fishbach's lecture is a ringing call to action. "The Blue Whale and its Survival Status" is airing on the Public channel. Look for it there – you'll be enlightened, and sobered, and inspired.

AHS Football Returns to ACMI
 For many New Englanders, nothing says FALL like FootBALL! Whether it's the NFL, or college, or high school, viewers anticipate the colors of the fall reflected in the colors of their favorite team, and in Arlington for many that is the distinctive maroon and white of Arlington High's Spy Ponders. ACMI is delighted to confirm its continuing LIVE coverage of Spy Ponder Football this fall, beginning with the home opener on Friday. Our crack sports production team (made up largely of AHS students) continues to set new standards for both the quality and the variety of elements in our broadcast – see for yourself! If you miss our live coverage of the game, you can always find it on our Education channel, where you will also find the rest of the Spy Ponders' home games throughout the fall!

Studio B Sessions – Take Two!
 It was the summer of 2017 when we debuted a new music series that was an instant success. Studio B Sessions spotlights talented musicians from Arlington and the surrounding area performing original music before a live audience in the cozy confines of ACMI's Studio B. From the artists themselves – ranging from singer-songwriters to jazz ensembles to rock bands – to enthusiastic viewers, this series has worked on a number of levels. So it is particularly exciting to share that it's back for a second season, with six performances taped so far and several more lined up for the coming weeks! We are currently airing three of the new episodes and will be adding more as soon as our expert editors add their final touches. Studio B Sessions appears on our Public channel at various times throughout the week.
