September Highlights

In the Tradition's Youth Movement
 "In The Tradition," ACMi's premiere member-produced music show, debuts its TWENTIETH episode this week. It moves the series in a new direction, as host Alan Kaufman welcomes 12-yr-old Julian Bokulich and his dad Peter to the In the Tradition set. Julian shares Alan's fascination with old-time music, and together they delve into that and their interest in other musical genres as well. A highlight of this particular episode involves Alan teaching Julian a fiddle tune in real time, in effect passing this great musical legacy on from one generation to the next. The episode is aptly titled "Adventures in Old-Time Music: The Next Generation," and you'll find it airing throughout the week in In the Tradition's accustomed time slot on the Public channel. You're in for a treat!

Introducing "White House Chronicles"
 As tempting as it would be to describe ACMi's newest syndicated offering as a play-by-play of the daily drama generated by this particular White House, it is in fact a long-running program that recently celebrated its 20th anniversary! Host Llewellyn King describes his show as "a comfy couch of a television program where viewers can sit back and learn something new, or think about something in a new way." He and his co-host Linda Gasparello are journalists with long experience covering politics, business and foreign affairs in the United States and abroad, and they use their Washington D.C. location and connections to ensure their show keeps its finger on the pulse of White House happenings, however fast and furious they might come. It's on our Public channel – check it out!

The Best of FidoFest 2017
 The first annual FidoFest, a video festival featuring (hu)man's best friend in a great variety of different situations, was an unqualified hit. Co-sponsored by A-DOG (Arlington Dog Owners Group) and ACMi, the festival attracted scores of dog fans, from full families to adult dog owners to seniors. Celebrating both dogs' special place in our lives and the often hilarious things they can get up to, FidoFest's lineup of videos included dogs chasing their own tails, a short film in which the featured canine was the principal love interest, and even a cat who wishes to be a dog! We have compiled the full menu of videos featured that evening into a crowd-pleasing 45-minute montage that will air several times weekly on our Public channel.
